PHONE BONDS COME IN FAST

More Than Half Deposited and Reorganization is Near.

PROCESS TO BE A RECEIVERSHIP

Independent Company Will Try for Third Time to Get on Its Feet Through Entire Reorganization.

More than half of the bonds of the Independent Telephone company have been placed on special deposit as one preliminary to a suit soon to be brought by the bondholders to foreclose their mortgage on the property of the company. The deposit of the bonds means that the efforts of the bondholders' committee have been successful and that the Independent Telephone company is about to pass into other control and that with considerable water squeezed out of it the corporation will be rehabilitated. This is the third attempt to put the Independent Telephone company on its feet. The first was made by men in the First National bank of Omaha. The bondholders proved coy. Next the Joseph Harris interests attempted it and organized for the purpose the Nebraska Securities company. The bondholders again failed to listen to the seductive voices which pleaded with them to sit in on the organization. Now the Committee.

Then came the committee of the bondholders headed by Frank H. Woods of Lincoln. Mr. Woods is president of the National Independent Telephone association. Others on the committee are Lysie I. Abbott, attorney for the committee, and the man who has done most of the work; Edson Rich, general attorney of the Union Pacific; Frank B. Johnson, president of the Omaha Printing company, and Frederick W. Stearns, a Chicago attorney. There have been several difficulties in the way of a forcible suit. The mortgage issued by the Title Insurance and Trust company of Los Angeles provides first that there must be a default on the payment of bond interest for six months; second, that the mortgages, which is the trust company, must have received notice of intention to sue for default in writing, that adequate security must be offered to indemnify the trust company for all costs and expenses incurred by the trust company in such litigation; third, that a majority in amount of the outstanding bonds must be deposited with the trust company. All these conditions are now complied with or will have been by March 1. There are outstanding $2,000,000 worth of bonds of the Independent Telephone company and more than half of this is now on deposit with the trust company in Los Angeles, or else in the mails on the way there. This clears the ground for the forcible suit, which is now but a matter of days. The process will be through a receivership. The forcible suit means that the bondholders will, in all likelihood, take over the property. The stockholders stand by the way of the receivership, and the rights and the company will be in a position to reorganize, sell additional securities and by enlarging the local service put the Independent Telephone company on its feet. The efficacy of Chamberlain's Liniment in the relief of rheumatism is being demonstrated daily.

CLEAN UP OR GO TO JAIL

This Alternative Will Be Given Business Men by Dr. Connors.

MOVE FOR A SANITARY CITY

Health Commissioner Says He Will Compel Proper Disposition of Refuse When the Spring Break-Up Comes.

If arrests and prosecutions of business men are necessary to secure compliance with city ordinances governing the matter of public health and sanitation, Health Commissioner Connors says they will be made. Not now, but after fair warning has been given. The health commissioner was feeling rather elated over the prospect that the water will be made tight and the refuse removed from streets and alleys. "This department will co-operate in every way possible with the water company," he said, "and I expect good results to flow from a trial of the method of lime treatment of the water." On the matter of cleaning up, while the health commissioner has some doubts, he is hoping for the best. He points out, however, that for two years an ordinance has been in force to compel owners or agents of buildings to provide a metallic or brick receptacle for ashes and refuse, which shall be cleaned out as often as it is filled. Real Estate Men the Ones.

"Now, the real estate men are the ones mainly concerned with the provisions of that ordinance," says the commissioner. "I know of but two or three cases in the whole city where the ordinance has been complied with. Real estate men and others who have been ordered to take the precautions required by law have bucked and kicked and hid behind the excuse that ashes do not create an unsanitary condition. Maybe not, but everything helps to produce such a condition eventually." "Right now we are sending out notices to owners and agents of buildings to construct or provide the receptacles for ashes and other refuse. Thus they will have all the spring and summer to get busy. Before the leaves fall again, if these notices are not heeded, I propose to swear out warrants for every person neglecting to obey the order. It should not be necessary to arrest business men to make them do their plain duty, when by neglect they endanger the health of the city, as well as mar its general appearance; but it is true, nevertheless, that such method of procedure is about the only one that will wake them up. If we have to, we will proceed to make arrests all along the line."

Craig Cannot Evade the Facts in Office Mess

Know All About Alleged Crookedness at First and Any Cover-Up Was Not Accidental.

"I see they are trying to put all the blame for this trouble that menaces the city engineer's office back onto Mr. Craig's predecessor in office, but that won't go with the people who know the facts," remarked a man in the city hall who is only one of many informed on this subject. "I want to say that Mr. Craig had these charges of crookedness and corruption in hand before he took charge of the office and if he retained any man under a cloud he did so with his eyes wide open. "We all know that had City Engineer Rosewater been re-elected with a tenure of office not due to appointment by the mayor and council so his hands would have been free for the first time, there would have been a thorough cleaning-out in ten days after Mr. Rosewater was installed as his own master." Pneumonia always results from a cold and can be prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
